The Chi...The Key

“There is nothing mystical about chi, it’s as natural as sound and electricity.”

By T.B. Pawlicki

A Western scientist presents a view of chi that demystifies and explains this force. He claims, “Oriental teaching is devoid of logic and just semantic nonsense.”

The Ancient Chinese developed mathematical science at least as advanced as the Greeks, but the lore that has come down to us from the Orient by oral tradition is utterly devoid of scientific logic or mathematical proof. As a consequence, the mystic systems of Oriental science are semantic nonsense outside of their original socio-economic context. As naive inheritors of their culture, most senseis are not aware they are talking nonsense to Western ears. Most Americans who go in for the Oriental Martial Arts are not properly plugged into scientific concepts, so they don’t notice they are hearing semantic nonsense, either.

The failure of verbal instruction to communicate Ancient Chinese intelligence is noticeable. American students are unable to develop the mysterious spiritual powers supposedly inherent in the mastery of the Oriental Martial Arts unless they undergo personal discipline under a true Master, in whose presence the CHI transpires without verbal intermediation. Developing spiritual powers is the only justification for risking the integrity of one’s skeletal joints in order to learn hand-to-hand combat, since an hour of pistol practice each week will supply as much self-defense as anyone is ever likely to need.

Perversely, no one accepts reality unless it conforms to preconceived beliefs. Therefore, when Martial Artists come out with testimony of mysterious spiritual powers that fail to show any conformity with established Western science, Americans, with the least sense of semantics, dismiss the whole study as another example of the advertising hype which puts mysterious magic ingredients into aspirin. As a consequence, the best scientific brains are selectively filtered out of the Martial Arts until no technical progress can be made, leaving the prevailing illogic to perpetuate itself without criticism. You can see the difference a scientific task force does to Olympic sports, while the Martial Arts languish to the genius of singular and solitary Masters.

Let me show you what spiritual power is all about.

If you dust powder onto the surface of a square piece of vibrant material, and then strike or strum the edges to make it vibrate, you will see the powder flow to the diagonals. Because the flow of vibration is to the diagonals from both sides, molecular density must be increased by sonic pressure, as revealed by the distribution of the bouncing powder.

Resistance to the transmission of sonic waves varies inversely with medium density. In other words, sound travels faster as density increases.

Therefore, when the sonic vibrations of the sheet meet at the diagonals, they rotate 90° and flow along the central lines at high velocity. Unless you put your earbone directly to the corners of the square, you never hear hypersonic waves because they always flow at right-angles to ordinary sound waves.

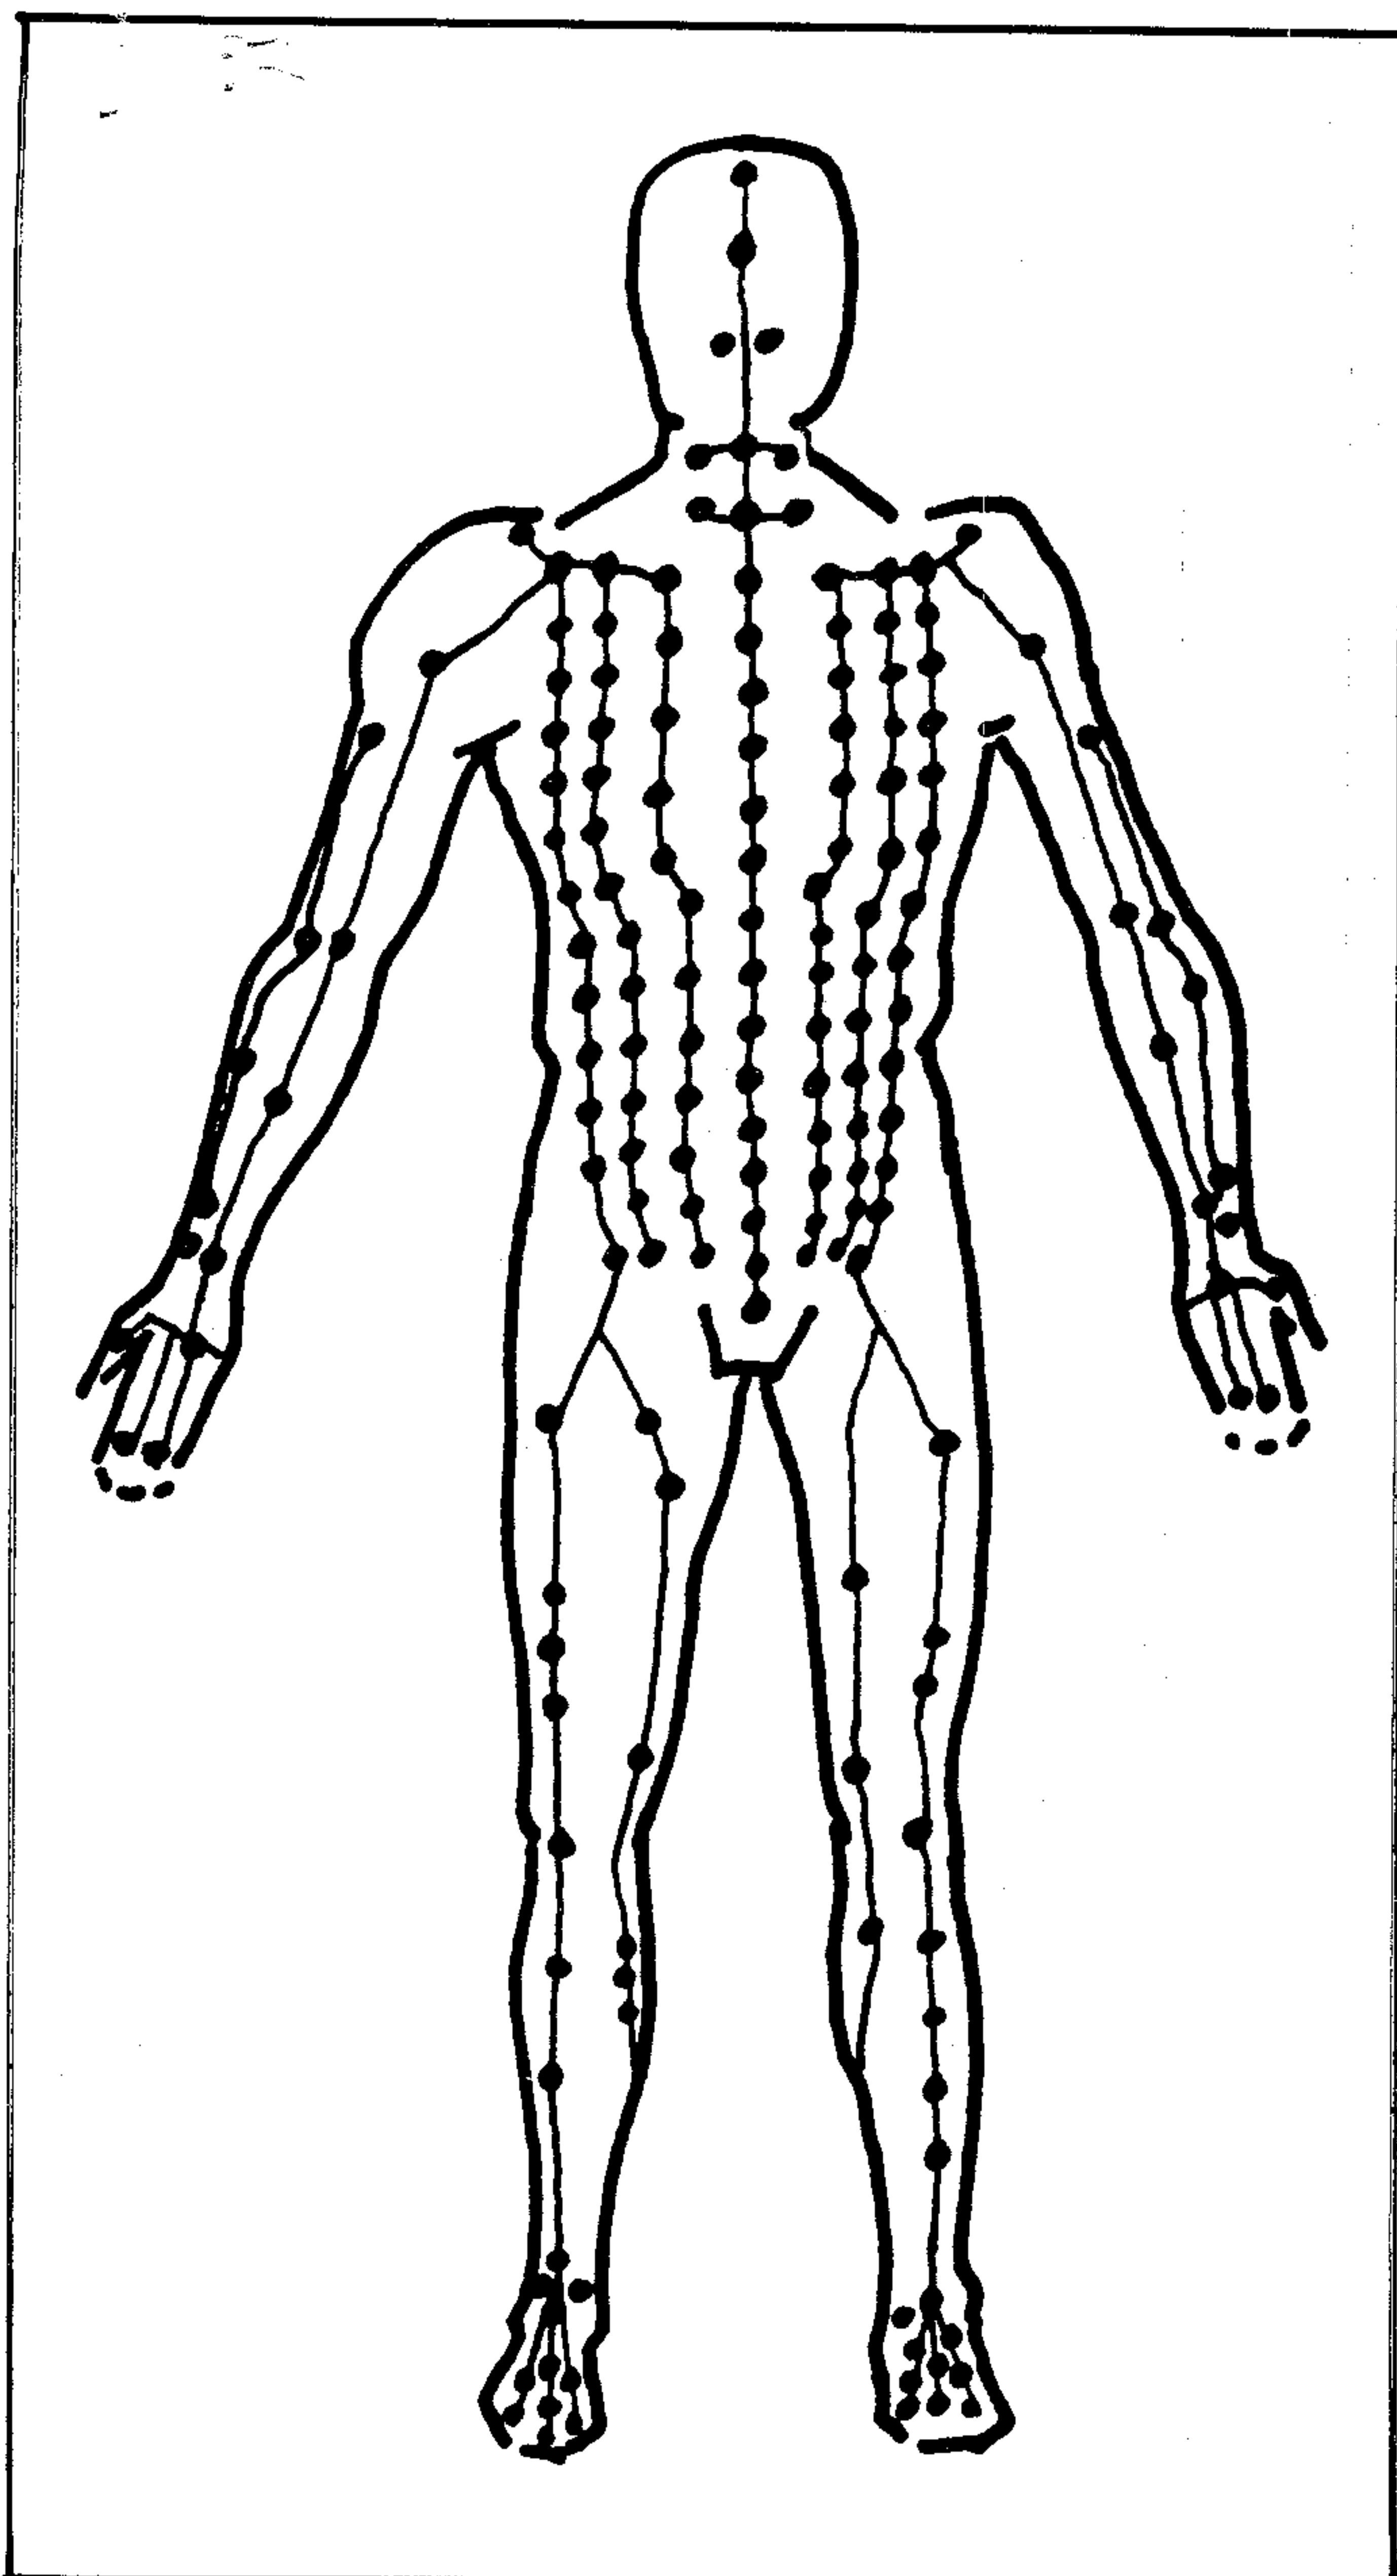

Since all the energy in the sheet is concentrated into the diagonals, hypersound must be exponentially greater in energy than ordinary sound. Since wave energy increases with the square of velocity, and the sheet’s area increases by the square of the diagonal lines, the equations are balanced.

Given sufficient material, the velocity of sonic waves flowing along the compression lines will approach light speed, and at that speed they become indistinguishable from electromagnetic waves. The transformation of sound waves into electromagnetic waves is what happens in a crystal microphone.

Now, if you use an equilateral triangle, instead of a square sheet, the hypersonic nodes will bisect the angles and intersect at the centre. A solid pyramid focuses its sonic vibrations along lines bisecting its corners and crossing at the same position of the King’s Chamber in the Pyramid of Cheops. From the peak of the Great Pyramid, the hypersonic line emerges as an electrically charged standing-columnar wave, described by Peter Tompkins in Secrets of the Great Pyramid.

So now that you are told how it works, you can see immediately that the mysterious Pyramid Power that the National Hockey League put under its players’ beds is nothing but hypersound. How about that?

The Earth is a laminated crystal, like an onion, with each layer made of a different material. Therefore, the vibrations of the planet must generate a network of hypersonic lines sectoring the globe into harmonic proportions. The hypersonic lines conduct waves at different velocities, according to their

A typical representation of the human meridians looks like the charts used by Chinese physicians. Real meridians do not trace straight lines between acupressure points, they define bisections of space between organs. The frequency of chi changes with pressure on the meridians. They resonate like musical pipes from sound waves traveling between sonic speed and the speed of light.

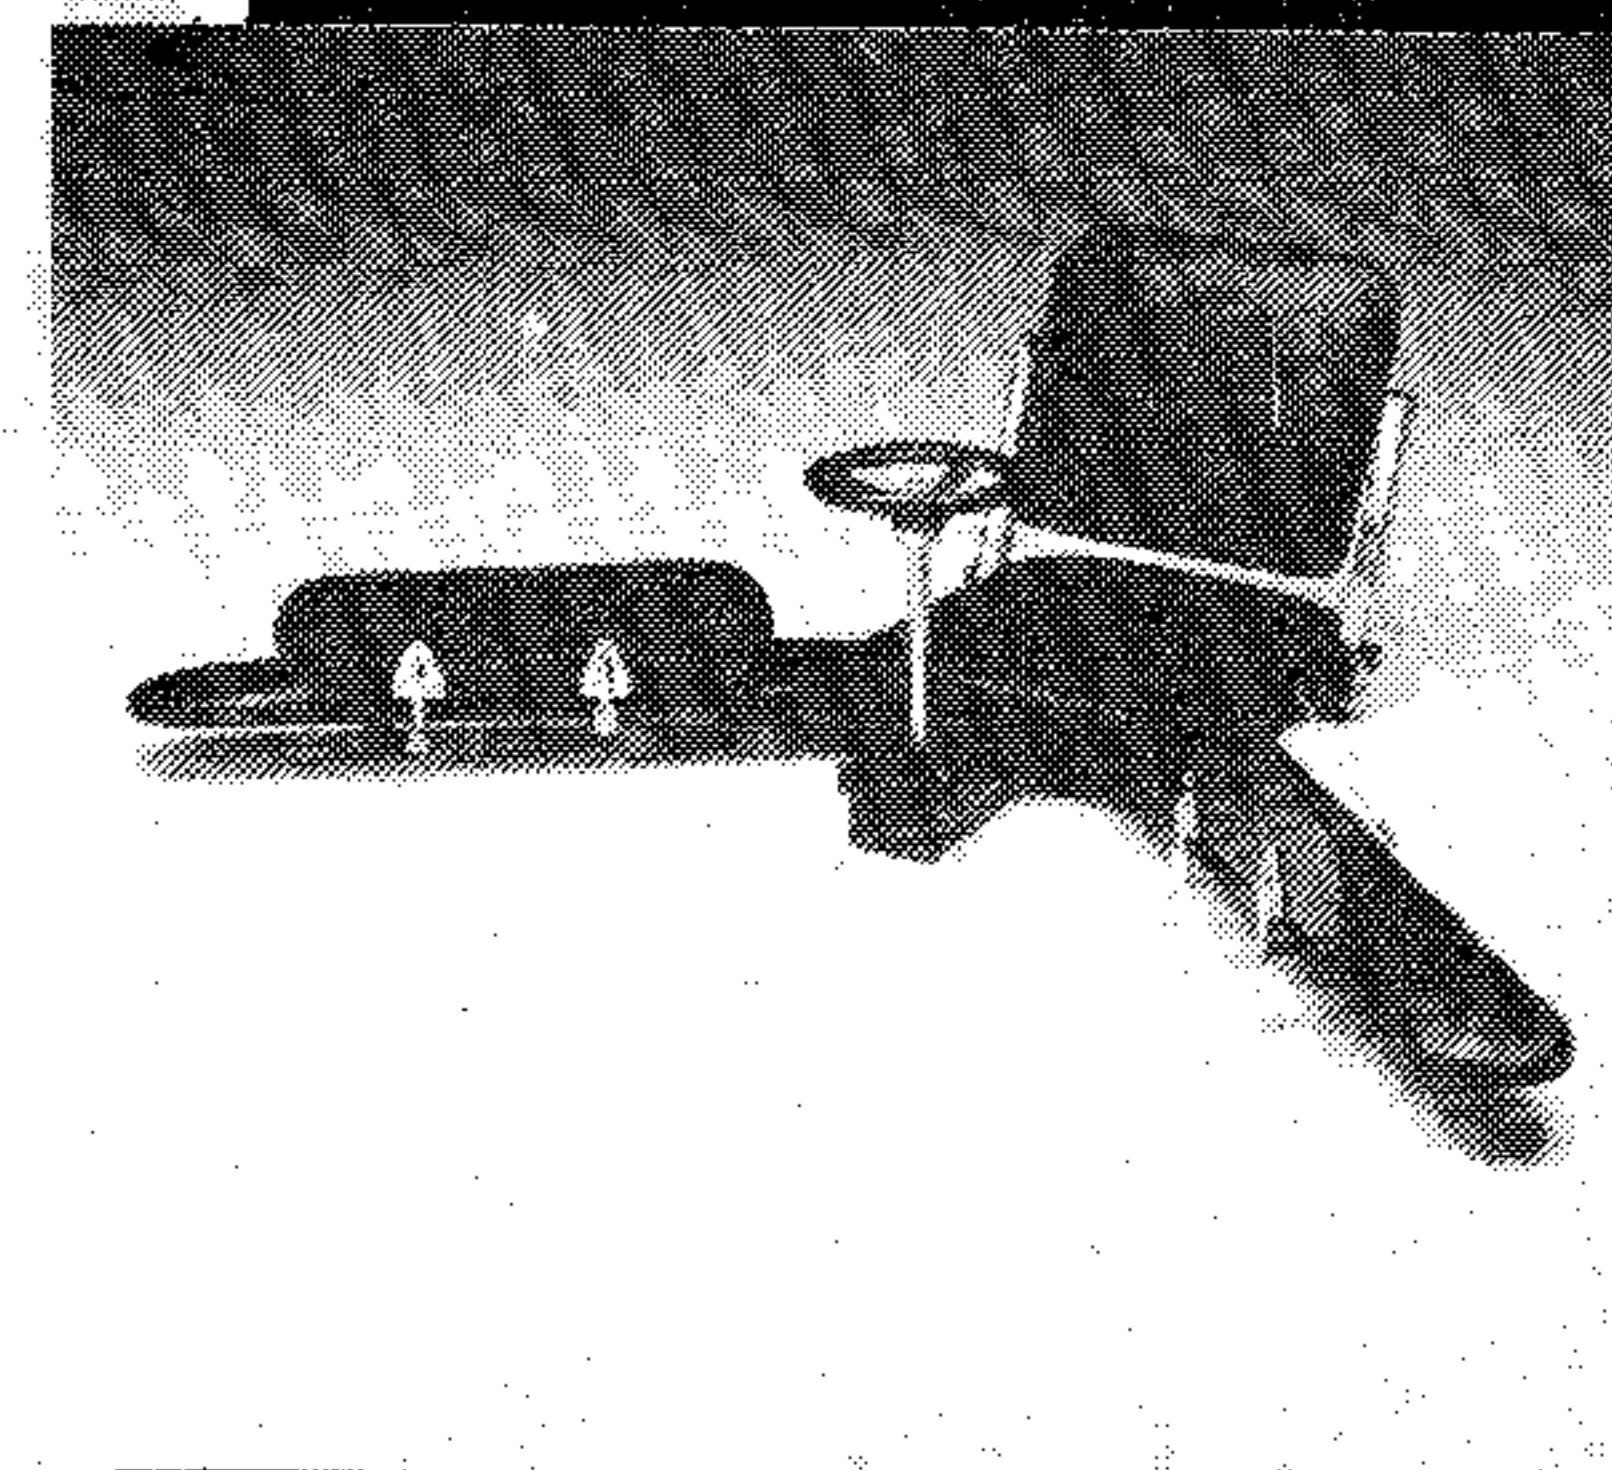

Furthermore, everyone resonates with everyone else. This makes it possible for a student, sympathetically tuned to the Master, to receive his CHI. Whereas people out of harmony with the Master, are repelled by his CHI. This is why a man of great MANA, as the Oceanans call CHI, can walk without fear of attack from beasts on two or four legs. It was the CHI of Jesus that made it impossible for the Roman soldiers to lay a hand on Him. The same repulsion keeps the Earth from falling into the Sun, and keeps electrons from falling into atoms. As a result, a man of great CHI is always very secure and peaceful.

The repellent power of strong CHI can be so great that it produces the phenomenon of Levitation. This harmonic frequency control makes it possible for the legendary, mystic Masters to leap onto housetops. The great dancer, Nijinsky, had great CHI too. It enabled him to float in the air, and if he had had sufficient belief in his force, he could have wowed his audiences like Jesus walking on water. You may not believe in human levitation, but contemporary mystics (Maharishis) are teaching a lot of disciples to walk on the ceiling—the footprints remain to prove it.

Since CHI is the life force, it follows that the Holy Spirit of divine healers is also a type of hypersonic vibration. The much publicized healing of Pyramid Power is but another way that hypersonic waves work on living organisms. Divine healing is always experienced as a rush of joy, which Christians call the love of Jesus. If you doubt me, go and talk to people who have received divine healing—the ones who have been healed. A master of CHI evinces a state of almost delirious glee, which is the same love of Christ that raised Lazarus. But the identity of the sensation has not been widely recognized, due to the scientific peculiarity of our culture.

The concept of "Divine Joy" seems to exist only in Northern European cultures. The Latins, for example, have no word for this type of joy; they approximate the emotion with the concept of allegria. I am not a Sinologist, but the absence of compelling joy in Oriental culture suggests that the Chinese have no concept of joy such as we attribute to Christian Love. Lacking the words, it becomes impossible for the experience to be socially communicated, except by intimate personal contact. As a consequence, the great power of CHI has been restricted to individual Masters who could only discover the resonance of their own bodies by accident and the good luck to be in harmonious surroundings. So when a Master returns from communing with his SPIRIT on the mountaintops, the only word he has to describe his experience of Divine Love is harmony. And the only word he has to describe his experience of the pure tone of hypersonic resonance (which Christians call purity) is sincerity.

What we call PHYSICAL LAWS, a Master has no words for, other than UNIVERSAL RIGHTNESS. And so you see, the spiritual powers of the Orient have always been available

Powder dusted onto a vibrating square flows to the diagonal. The diagonals define the nodal lines of the vibrating square. Powder dusted onto a vibrating triangle flows to the bisectors. The nodes extend beyond the triangle to form a standing columnar wave. This is the secret of Pyramid Power.

“Erotic excitement is the sensation produced by a concentration of hypersonic resonance in flesh . . . a specific energy level of the chi music produces sex appeal and charisma.”

to Western science. But scientists have a problem of culture. Whereas the Eastern mind regards the sensations produced by energy as real, Western scientists deny any interaction between experiment and experimenter. Any time a spiritual phenomenon turns up in a lab, the records are shoved into the shredder before the man in charge of the funds hears of it.

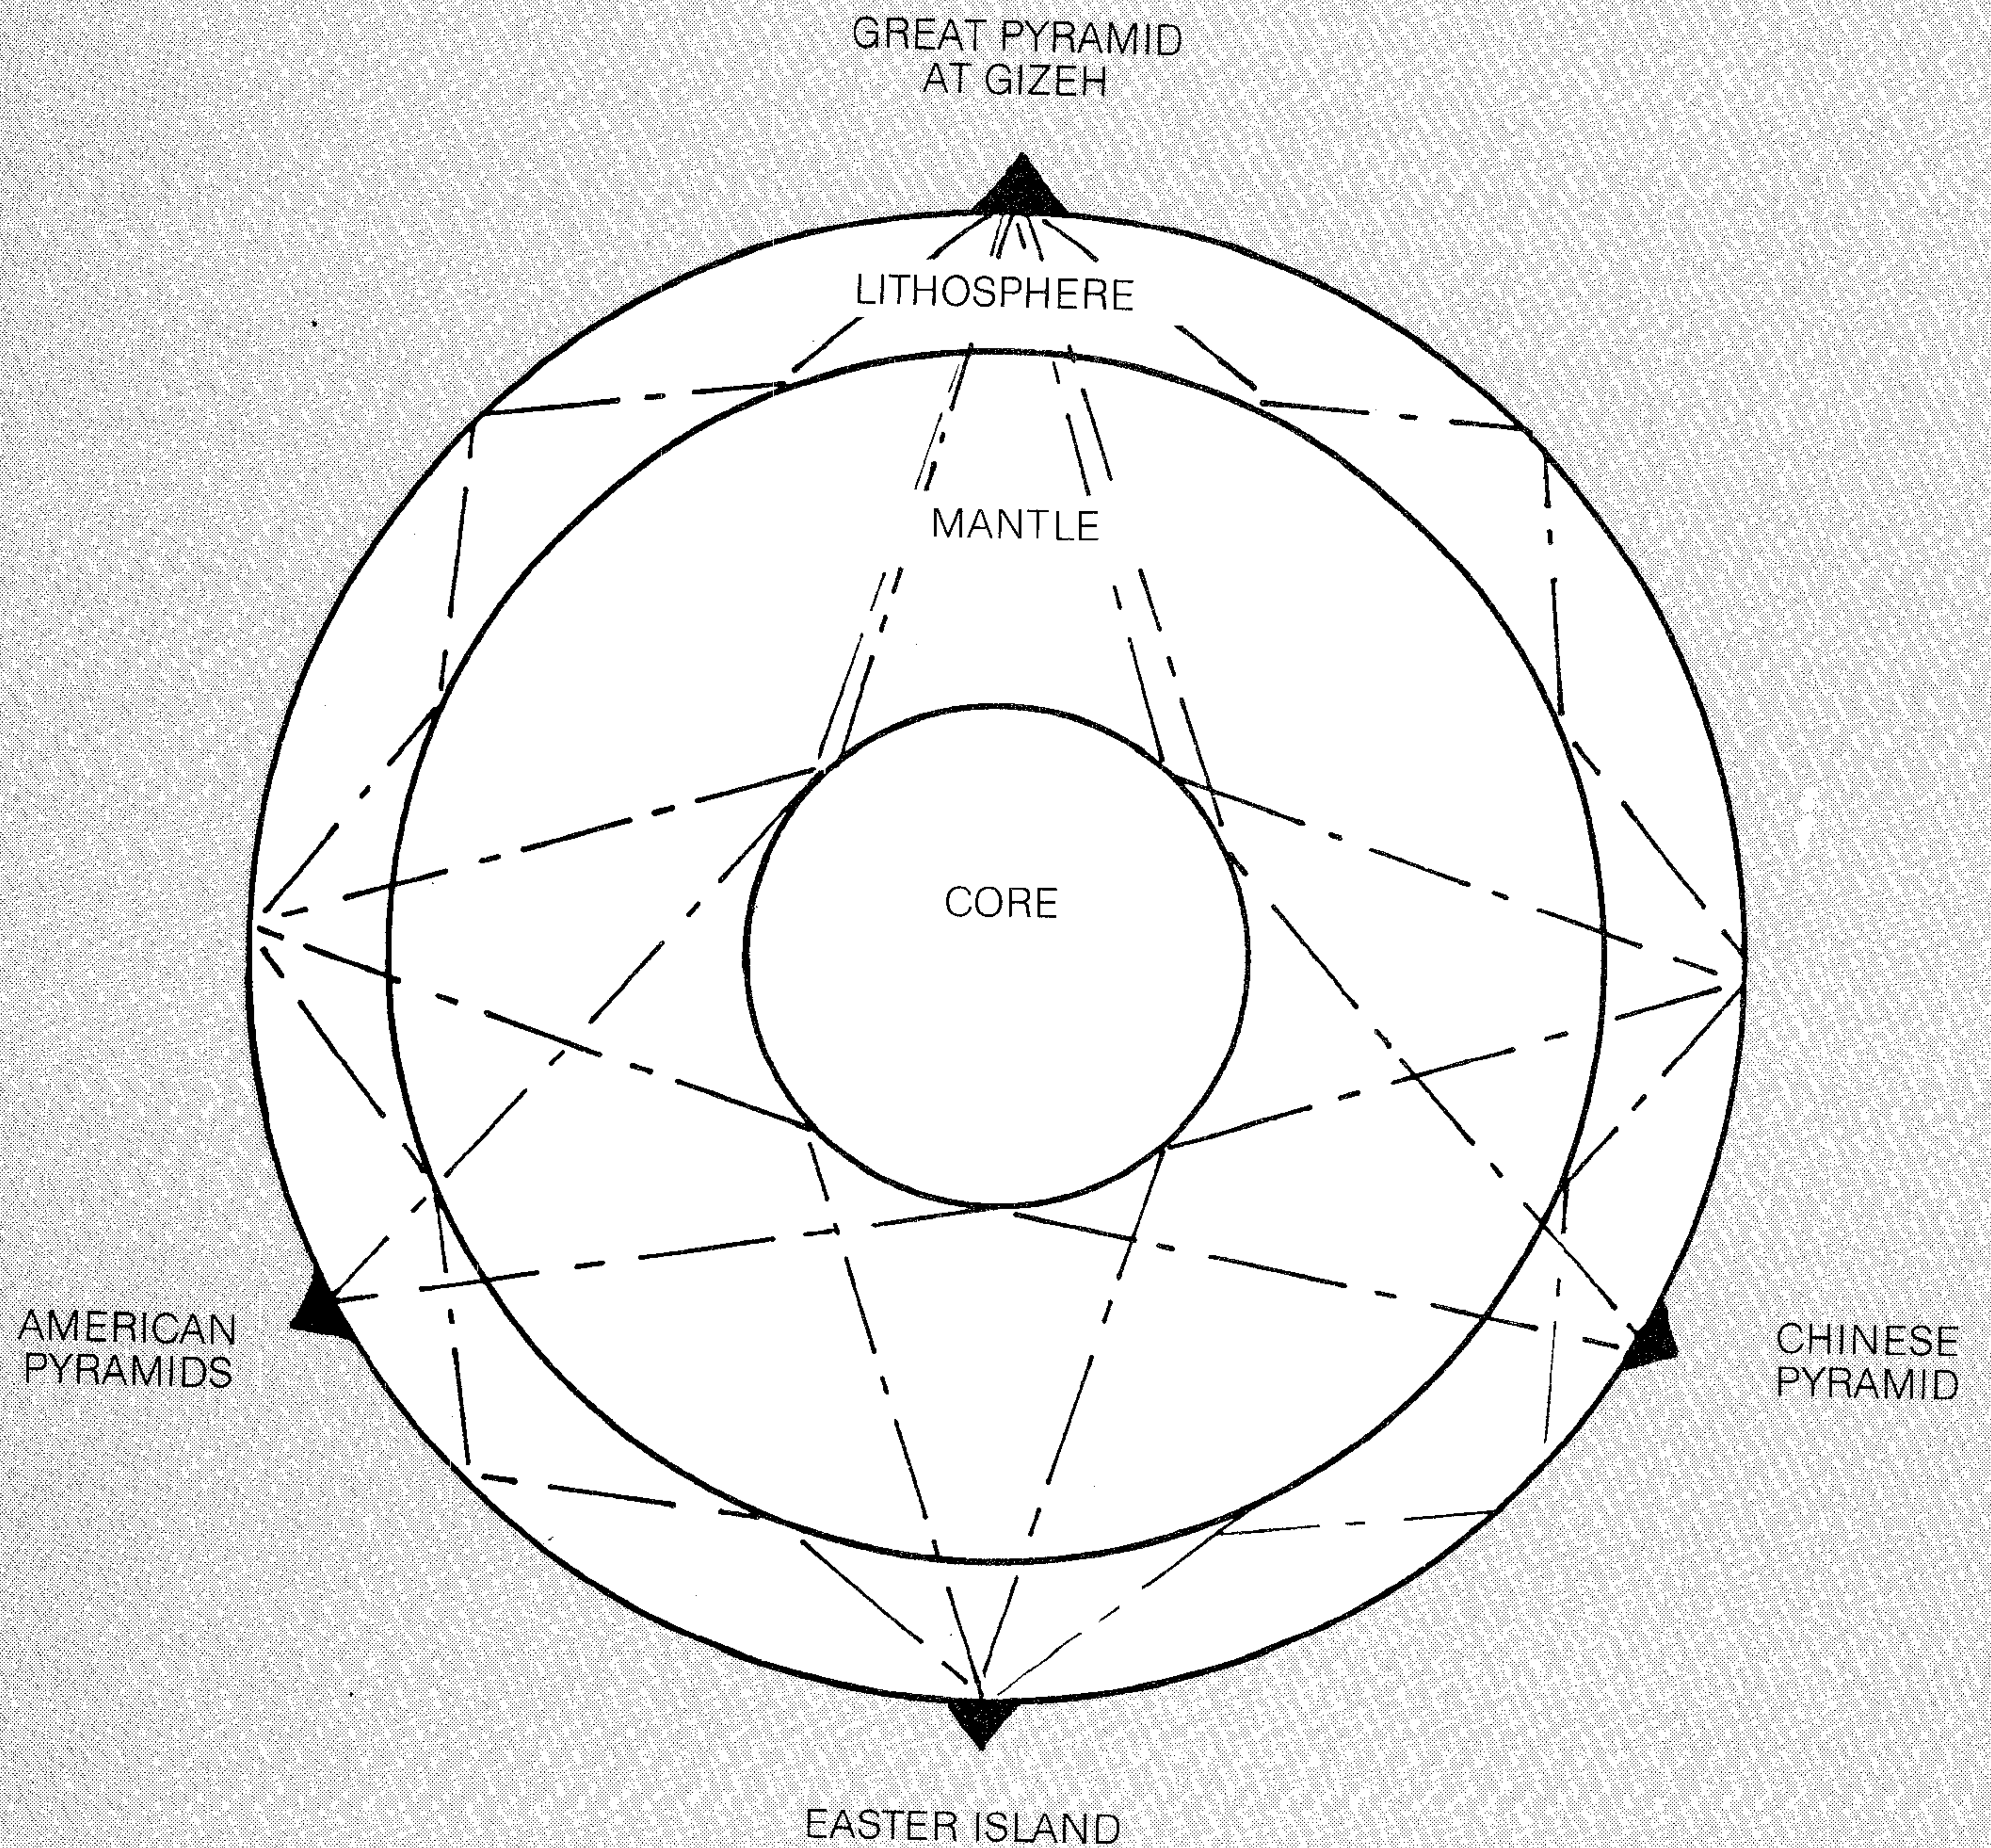

The Chinese word CHI is also the name of the Greek letter X. Coincidence? Well, the Greeks spelled CHRIST with X as in “Xmas Greetings.” The Buddha’s CHI is the same FORCE as Rama Krishna’s, and Jesus Christ’s. So we all worship the same God that inspired the Egyptians to build Pyramids for worship, like we built cathedrals. This same Divine love is what Freud called libido and Reich called orgone.

Erotic excitement is the sensation produced by a concentration of hypersonic resonance in flesh. When the concentration discharges, the hypersonic vibrations oscillate back and forth as a Die Wave between the KUNDALINI CHAKRA and the pleasure CHAKRA of the brain, producing the sensation of orgasm. So, you see, a specific energy level of the CHI music produces sex appeal and charisma.

Since hypersound is a function of material density, and so is gravity, it follows that the hypersonics we experience as living creatures, drawing CHI from the Earth, is what physicists would call a “quantum dither in the planetary gravitational field.”

Since all athletic power comes by swinging in harmony with the constant acceleration of gravity (as proven by gymnasts and dancers), it follows that you will develop CHI most expeditiously by coordinating your techniques with the universal swing of gravity. GRAVITY is the UNIVERSAL SPIRITUAL POWER testified to by the Masters. They can be forgiven for believing gravity to be a Spirit of God, because the Orient had no scientific concept of gravity until we invaded them with Pepsi Cola; for that matter, we had no concept of gravity either, until Newton conceived the idea.

The entire universe is held together by a lattice of hypersonic and hyperelectric meridians. May the FORCE be with you.

Schematic diagram to show how standing-wave structures resonate through the earth. These ley lines transform cosmic vibrations into geophysical flows such as the continental drift. This is why the land masses are distributed at harmonic intervals around the earth's surface.

Intelligence can be transmitted through the earth at ley frequencies without any loss of signal strength over distance. Apparently, the ancient pyramid civilizations knew how to tap the power of the planetary chi.

frequencies, to produce the data differentials of seismology. Where the hypersonic lines emerge to run along the surface of the Earth, Chinese geomancers traced the LEY of the land. According to the TAO, LEY LINES conduct CHI, the mysterious spiritual power developed by a lifelong discipline in the Martial Arts.

So, you see, the mysterious CHI, like Pyramid Power, is also hypersonic vibes.

The human body is a complexly laminated organic structure. The molecular vibrations of the human body must define hypersonic nodal lines. Since the nodes bisect their material medium as a function of mass, density, and conformation, it is only natural that the term they are called by Taoists is translated into English as MERIDIANS.

Western medical science believes nothing exists unless it can be revealed by dissection. Since meridians are created only by a pressure differential, Western scientists are convinced that neither meridians nor the CHI exists. If navigators used the same logic as scientists, they should be convinced that the jet stream, the Trade Winds, and the Gulf Stream, also, do not exist.

Since CHI is hypersound, it is only natural that the Chinese physicians define the scale like their hexatonic music into the notes of EARTH, WOOD, WATER, FIRE, and AIR. When mystics hear the hypersound of their body vibrations, they call it THE SOUND OF OM—what else?

Since hypersound is accelerated by reduced resistance to wave flow, there is a point where resistance falls to zero, and at that point the material must become superconductive. A peculiar characteristic of superconductive material is that it does not increase in temperature when it is subjected to heat. Instead, the random molecular vibrations of heat are instantly transformed at contact into the coherent vibrations of sonic resonance, to produce a phenomenon that cryogenic physicists call SECOND SOUND. Physicists deny the SOUND OF OM even while they hear it coming from a Dewar Flask. So now you know how a Master is able to walk on fire without getting burned—but you can be sure that he is resonating like crazy—hypersonically.

Since meridians are defined by a pressure differential, anything that changes the pressures in a human body will alter the flow of CHI. It follows that massage, Rolling, and acupressure must alter the flow of BIOPLASMIC ENERGY. A sharp blow to an acupressure point is capable of blocking the flow of vital CHI so that the victim will sicken and die several days afterwards. Dr. John Ott proved the vital necessity of specific frequencies of vibrations to living creatures, and demonstrated the failures of health when the balance of vibrations is disturbed. This explains the mysterious TOUCH OF DEATH. It is not a myth. The Earth is a capacitor of cosmic vibrations. A musical string induces sympathetic vibrations in every other harmonically tuned string. All material structures resonate musically, at fundamental and harmonic frequencies. Every living creature draws its vital CHI from the Earth by sympathetic induction.
